

RESEARCHES OF RUSSIAN POLITICAL SCIENTISTS

Russian history: from ancient times to the beginning of the XXI century

Information about the author: Perevezentsev Sergey Vyacheslavovich — Professor of the Department of History of Social and Political Studies, Faculty of Political Science, Lomonosov Moscow State University

Information about the book: Russian history is the history of a special civilization of the Russian world. The history of the Russian world was extremely complex and contradictory. There were numerous periods of the highest rise, of the unusually productive historical and cultural creation. At the same time there were times of tragic falls, when it seemed that the Russian world will never rise from the ruins. However, time passed and it turned out that the Russian world, like a mysterious Phoenix, was reborn from the ashes and began to recreate everything around. How? Why did it happen? What is the secret of the constant revival of the Russian world? It will be discussed on the pages of this book.

For students and teachers of humanities in universities and those who are interested in the common problems of Russian history.

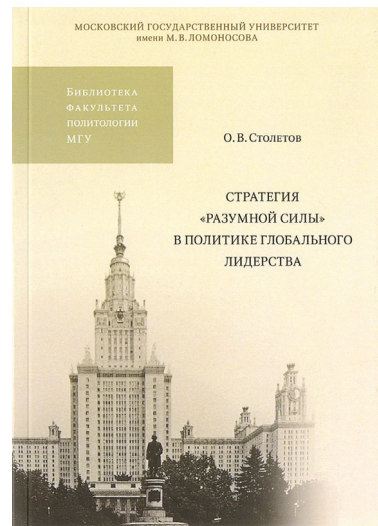

For more information visit the website of the publishing house “Academic project”:
http://academ-pro.ru/index.php?id_product=1150&controller=product&id_lang=7

The strategy of “reasonable force” in the politics of global leadership

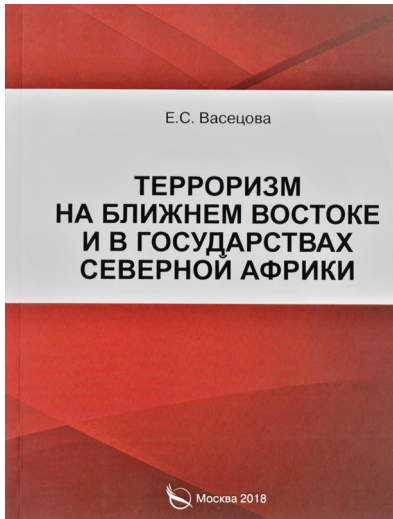

Information about the author: Oleg Stoletov — Ph. D. (Political Science), Senior Lecturer of the Faculty of Political Science, Lomonosov Moscow State University

Information about the book: Monograph “Strategy of “reasonable force” in the policy of global leadership” was published in the series “Library of the Faculty of Political Science of Moscow State University”. The monograph is devoted to the study of modern strategies of the subjects in international relations and of the world politics in the context of the growing global crisis. The study analyzes the relationship between the policy of global leadership and the strategy of “reasonable force”, which is considered as a necessary condition to overcome the crisis of world civilization and to ensure its survival in the XXI century.

The work is addressed to specialists in the field of political science, international relations, world politics, political globalism, as well as a wide range of readers.

Terrorism in the Middle East and North Africa

Information about the author: Elena Vasetsova — Ph. D. (Political Science), Associate Professor of the Department of Political Science of the East, Institute of Asian and African Studies, Lomonosov Moscow State University

Information about the book: The monograph “Terrorism in the Middle East and North Africa” analyzes different approaches to the definition of terrorism, forms of terrorism in the modern world, identifies the main features of terrorism in the Islamic form. The author examined the reasons for the growth of terrorist activity in the Middle East and North Africa in the context of the socio-political situation in the region, the activities of armed Islamist organizations in Syria, Libya and the Sinai Peninsula.

The study is addressed to political scientists, orientalists, specialists in international relations, and those who are interested in the problems of countering terrorism.

Pan-Slavic political concepts: genesis and evolution

Information about the author: Vladimir Boldin — assistant of the Department of History of Social and Political Studies of the Faculty of Political Science of Lomonosov Moscow State University.

Information about the book: In 2018, the book was published by the publishing house “Aquilon”. The book is devoted to the history and theory of Pan-Slavism. It concentrates on the methodological problems of studying Pan-Slavism as a political ideology, the mechanisms of formation of supranational identities, characterizes the dichotomy “Pan-Slavism-Neo-Slavism” in modern literature, shows the genesis of the idea of “Slavic solidarity”, compares various Pan-Slavic models in Slavic countries and Russia.

A special chapter of the work is devoted to the journal “Slavic Century” (1900–1904), which shows the evolution of Pan-Slavism ideology at the beginning of the 20th century: from “Cultural” and “Political” Pan-Slavism to “Economic” Pan-Slavism.

The Appendix contains an inventory of the journal “Slavic Century”. Moreover, there is a translation into Russian language of the work of the Hungarian scientist Kostya Sandor “Pan-Slavism” (1981).

The book is accessible on the bookstores “Tsiolkovsky” (<http://primuzee.ru/>) and “Falanster” (<http://falanster.su/>).

Public sphere and digital governance of the modern state

Information about the author: Artem Kosorukov — Ph. D. (Political Science), Senior Lecturer of the Faculty of Public Administration, Lomonosov Moscow State University

Information about the book: The monograph reveals the features of public sphere governance in modern society in an increasingly sophisticated tools of state and corporate control, describes the experience of building an electronic state and the processes of electronic administration, the specifics of digital public sphere management in terms of algorithmization of search engines and social networks, the use of open and big data technologies in the practice of transition from electronic to digital government.

The monograph is devoted to professionals, as well as for a wide range of readers interested in the development of civil society and public administration, the introduction of e-government technologies, digitalization of public administration and the construction of digital government.

Electoral system as a factor of formation and development of Russian democracy (comparative political and legal research)

Information about the author: Roman Alekseev — Ph. D. (Political Science), Associate Professor, Associate Professor of the Department of Political Science and Law of Moscow Region State University, Associate Professor of civil law in MFUA, lawyer, member of the regional branch of the Russian Society of Political Scientists.

Information about the book: The monograph is devoted to the problems of formation and functioning of the electoral system in Russia. The institutions of constitutional law: the electoral law and the electoral process are investigated. The concepts of “electoral system” and “democracy” are analyzed. The author explains his concept of “electoral system” and proposes the ways of reforming the electoral system of modern Russia.

The monograph will be interesting for a wide range of readers: lawyers practicing in the field of constitutional law; political scientists; members of election commissions at various levels, as well as for ordinary citizens — voters of Russia.

